Islamic Banking and Finance

A course on the logic of Islamic banking, its main contracts and how they become financing and investment products, with the role of Shari'ah supervision and industry standards.

Code	HT-BNK-102
Category	Banking & Investment
Duration	1 week
Level	Intermediate

Introduction

Islamic banking is no longer a niche on the edge of the sector. Many banks and windows now offer Shari'ah-compliant products, and the people who work there need to understand the contract before they sell the product built on it.

Objectives

- Explain the core principles and prohibitions of Islamic financial transactions
- Distinguish murabaha, ijara, musharaka and mudaraba and where each is used
- Trace the execution stages of an Islamic financing product and its Shari'ah controls
- Understand how sukuk are structured and how they differ from conventional bonds
- Clarify the role of the Shari'ah supervisory board and Shari'ah audit in a bank

Who should attend

- Staff of Islamic banks and Islamic windows in branches and head office
- Managers of Shari'ah-compliant banking products
- Compliance and Shari'ah audit officers
- Bankers moving from conventional to Islamic banking

Skills you will develop

- Understanding Islamic finance contracts
- Structuring Islamic financing products
- Risk analysis of Islamic transactions
- Applying Shari'ah controls

Learning Outcomes

- Draw a flow diagram of a murabaha or ijara transaction from request to repayment
- Choose the right contract for a given financing need and justify the choice
- Identify the Shari'ah control points across a financing product's life cycle
- Explain a sukuk issuance structure and holders' rights to a client or colleague

Course Outline

Day 1: Foundations of Islamic Financial Transactions
